LOS ANGELES – Jeff Beck had an amazing 2010 and it looks like 2011 is going to be even better. Last June, Beck gave a stirring performance alongside The Imelda May Band at the Iridium Jazz Club in New York, paying his respects to the late, great guitarist Les Paul. On February 22, ROCK ‘N’ ROLL PARTY (HONORING LES PAUL) will be released on Blu-Ray, DVD, and CD from Eagle Rock Entertainment and ATCO prior to Beck taking this “party” on the road.

“The Rock ‘n’ Roll Party” Tour kicks off on March 24 in Washington D.C. with Beck once again performing Les Paul classics with The Imelda May Band. Beck and May enchanted the 2010 Grammy Awards audience with their duet of Paul’s “How High the Moon.” Fans can expect to hear this classic song, as well as many other rock ‘n’ roll hits on this tour.

After finishing the tour in San Francisco, CA on April 9th, Beck will re-join his celebrated Emotion & Commotion band (Jason Rebello, Rhonda Smith, and Narada Michael Walden) for a tour of North America beginning on April 13 in Salt Lake City. The tour will also include stops at Nashville’s famous Ryman Auditorium and Beck’s second appearance at the New Orleans Jazz Festival as well as performing at the West Palm Beach Sunfest on May 1st.

Beck’s latest album Emotion & Commotion has been nominated for five Grammy® awards, making him the most nominated artist in this year’s Rock category. His nominated work includes Best Rock Album, Best Rock Instrumental Performance (“Hammerhead”), Best Rock Performance By A Duo Or Group With Vocals (“I Put A Spell On You” with Joss Stone), Best Pop Instrumental performance (“Nessun Dorma”), and Best Engineered Album, Non-Classical (for Steve Lipson). Beck is also nominated in the Best Pop Collaboration With Vocals category for “Imagine,” his collaboration with Herbie Hancock, Pink, India.Arie, Seal, Konono No 1 & Oumou Sangare. Beck has previously won five Grammy awards.
